

Re-Accreditation Issued by NATEF

The automotive training program at Rosedale Technical Institute in Pittsburgh has received accreditation by NATEF and The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) once again.

Every five years RTI's automotive training program must go through rigorous evaluation by the National Automotive Technicians Foundation (NATEF) to maintain accreditation. Nationally accepted standards of excellence in areas such as instruction, facilities, and equipment are used.

"This is great news for automotive-minded young people and their parents," said Donald Seyfer, NATEF Chair. "Because this program increases cooperation between local education and industry leaders, it gives added assurance that Rosedale Tech's graduates will be employable entry-level technicians. As a result of the quality education provided by Rosedale Tech the motoring public will benefit since better repair technicians will join the work force."

Rosedale Tech Director of Education, Ed Petrunak, added "During the past few months, we have worked closely with NATEF to make certain that our program would once again meet the strict industry standards that are in place today. Students will be assured of a quality education and shop owners will be assured of getting quality job applicants as we continue to maintain our accreditation."

- Debbie Bier, Director of Admissions, Rosedale Technical Institute